Tragedy strikes airport

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

Investigators are still trying to determine how two Northwest planes collided Monday, killing eight passengers and injuring 21. Eight passengers were unaccounted for Tuesday morning and six were known to have walked away from the wreckage.

All of the dead and injured were passengers on Northwest Flight 1482, a DC-9 bound for Pittsburgh, Pa. There were 39 passengers and four crew members aboard the plane.

The other plane, Northwest Flight 299, a Boeing 727, was bound for Memphis, Tenn. There were 146 passengers on board the 727.

Both planes were on the ground preparing for takeoff, although the planes were in different stages of the takeoff process, according to reports.

Early reports indicated that the 727 had received clearance from the control tower to make the final approach to runway 3-center and was cleared to take off.

The 727 was at full throttle traveling down the runway with its nose in the air, when it collided with the DC-9. The 727 pulled up, but the wing of the plane clipped the top of the DC-9.

A large chunk of wing broke off from the 727, fuel came spewing out of the wing onto the DC-9, and the combination with sparks from metal scraping metal erupted into flames.

The pilot of the 727 was able to bring his plane to a stop more than 1,000 yards down the runway, while fire erupted and ripped through the cabin of the DC-9.

One of the factors being considered in the investigation is the weather conditions at the time of the collision.

Reports indicate that weather conditions were within the minimum standards for planes to take off at the airport, even though the fog was thick. Visibility was reported to be one-quarter of a mile. In these types of conditions, planes can take off, but they can't land, according to reports. The individual pilots and the Federal Aviation Administration make the decision whether or not to delay takeoff.

Immediately after the collision, fire trucks and rescue squads were on the scene. Reports indicate that the emergency vehicles went directly to the 727, which was sitting further north on the runway. It is unclear whether or not they could see the DC-9, which they would have passed on the way to the 727.

"I heard one plane running at takeoff power, then I heard a loud noise, but I couldn't see anything because of the fog," said an airport employee who didn't want to be named.

The employee works on the ground near the American Airlines office on the south side of the airport where the collision took place.

"I don't think that they (rescue team) saw the DC-9 - they passed it up and went to the 727 first," he said.

He claims the fog was so thick that it was hard to find the two planes.

By the time the rescue team arrived at the DC-9, some passengers had already evacuated the plane. Those who were able to get out first helped other passengers escape the burning DC-9, according to reports from witnesses.

One man suffered a third-degree burn on his finger as he tried to extinguish the flames on the neck of another passenger, who was on fire when he and eight missing. The wing of the 727 jet severed the top of a DC-9. The DC-9 burst into flames, trapping most of the victims inside the plane. Some miraculously escaped the flames. However, none of the passengers on the 727 jet were injured. ANP photo by Werner Socum/staff photographer

Local hospitals react quickly to disaster

Approximately 15 minutes after a Northwest Airlines DC-9 was clipped by a departing jet and erupted in flames at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Monday, Annapolis Hospital officials in Wayne raced about and assumed their respective positions as if they were in a combat zone.

The number of passengers dead on the DC-9 was unknown. A reported 50 victims of the fatal crash were expected at Annapolis.

Officials from the University of Michigan burn center were on their way to Annapolis.

Shortly after 3 p.m., Chuck Bruhn, vice president-administrator of Annapolis, staged a press conference for a group of reporters huddled in a room which was set up just to house the media.

"We have one person who is in critical condition," Bruhn said. "Another seven have minor injuries. It's not known if any others will be brought to Annapolis. We were told to expect three more."

The victims ended up being transported to five different hospitals in Wayne County. A total of 17 people were brought to Annapolis. Fifteen were treated at Annapolis and two were sent to the University of Michigan burn center.

Three more people were taken to Garden City Hospital. Four victims of the crash were treated at Heritage Hospital in Taylor, and one was treated at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn.

Eight people were confirmed dead by airport officials Tuesday morning and a handful of other passengers from the DC-9 were missing.

The majority of the passengers on flight 1482 were from out of town. Only one of the passengers who was treated was from Michigan, according to hospital officials. Another victim was a stewardess who was on her way home to Pittsburgh and was a passenger on the DC-9.

Victims taken to Heritage Hospital were:

- Walid Moussa, 44, from Sterling Heights. He was treated for back pain.
- Robert Bartle, 36, from Pennsylvania. He was treated for an ankle fracture.
- Joseph Kutcel, 50, from

Councilmembers approve audit

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus councilmembers and Mayor Beverly McAnally received the thumbs up from city accountants last week for the 1989-90 budget audit.

Officials from Doyle, Litt, Kuras and Co., a Troy-based accounting firm, audited the city financial statements up to June 30, 1989. They said Romulus made a remarkable financial improvement in the last seven years.

"We're operating on an efficient basis with far less than what the schools are getting," Councilman Jimmie C. Rasberry said.

The report is more than 100 pages and contains recommendations for the council and city staff to use at their discretion.

The first recommendation addressed confiscated drug raid money, which is kept in a separate account under Police Chief Fred Dansby's signature.

"We recommend that the account be transferred so that it would be under the treasurer's control and that future monies confiscated be turned over to the treasurer the day after the seizure," the report said.

"During our audit tests, we noted that in many instances items were purchased prior to a purchase requisition and purchase order being prepared. We recommend that the purchasing procedure be adhered to more closely."

"During our audit tests, we noted that in many instances items were purchased prior to a purchase requisition and purchase order being prepared," the report said. "We recommend that the purchasing procedure be adhered to more closely."

Other recommendations include:

- Tax distributions be made at least on a quarterly basis.
- City treasurer's office reconcile any differences with the Wayne County Grand Reconciliation Delinquent Tax Roll Audit on a timely basis.
- Closer monitoring of expenditures.
- Determine what is included in the undistributed balance of the general tax fund. The fund contains a balance in undistributed taxes which dates back a number of years. A portion of the balance accounted for and dates back to fiscal years ended June 1983 and 1984. The remainder of the balance has not been determined.
- The treasurer's office should add the delinquent personal property tax rolls and the finance department should adjust the records to reflect the actual receivable balance calculated by the treasurer's office.
- Establish guidelines for writing off uncollectable accounts to be approved by the council.

Salvation Army makes Christmas merry for all

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

For those down on their luck, Christmas can be a painful time of the year.

That's why the Salvation Army tries to lighten the load of the holidays. When you picture the Salvation Army, images of Santa Claus on a street corner or in front of a department store come to mind.

But soliciting isn't its only function. Every day, the Salvation Army provides thousands of families with food and clothing.

In the Plymouth-Canton area alone, it provides food for 400 to 500 people every month, according to Kris Wood, director of social services for the Plymouth-Canton area Salvation Army.

"People don't realize that we have such a large demand for the needy in this area," Wood said.

One of the newest programs sponsored by the Salvation Army is the adopt a family program, Wood said.

"Corporations, businesses, clubs and service groups from the area adopt a family at Christmas time," Wood said.

So far this year, more than 200 families living in the area have been adopted. The adopted family will receive food for a Christmas dinner, toys and clothing. All of these items are funded by the Salvation Army.

To qualify for assistance from the Salvation Army, an individual or family must prove they are in need.

The Salvation Army also provides assistance to those who may not be poor, but may be experiencing some financial problems.

"Some people may have some huge doctor bills. They may not be able to pay their electric bill because of big doctor bills," he said.

"They're not poor people, they're just people going through a hard time, and for them Christmas is impossible."

Volunteers (left) met last week to help decorate the Belleville Area Museum. The museum is set up like a small village inside an old school building. Many items from the Victorian era are on display.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON—A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named produce Food Source One actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds, but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a prescription because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced style are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, DC 20005, however, please include $2 Postage & Handling for each request.

Pittsburgh. He was treated for a broken leg and had a finger amputated.

• Mary Kay Ruane-Bolin, 34, from Pittsburgh. She was transferred to U. of M. for a possible back fracture. At press time Tuesday, Ruane-Bolin was in fair condition at the marrow intensive care unit. Hospital officials expect to remove her from intensive care by the end of the week.

The one victim who was taken to Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn did not want her name mentioned because her husband is in the military and is stationed in Korea. The woman is in satisfactory condition. She is also seven months pregnant.

At the University of Michigan burn center the two patients were Blanche Shaw, 81, of Beaver, Penn. She was treated for second-degree burns on her face, back and hands. Her condition was listed good at press time Tuesday.

A 38-year-old man suffered second-degree burns on more than 10 percent of his body, according to hospital officials. He also suffered from smoke inhalation and abdominal trauma.

Doctors performed exploratory surgery Monday night. They found a torn liver, which they repaired, and removed the gall bladder because it was bleeding. The individual is in critical condition. His name was not released to the media. Hospital officials said he is not from Michigan.

It will take about five to seven days before doctors know if the burned areas have become infected by bacteria. If an area becomes infected, it could be surgically removed or a cream can be placed on the burns to kill the infection, according to hospital officials.

The burn center specializes in treating patients from burn related injury to rehabilitation.

No names were released by Annapolis Hospital. Only two of the 15 admitted were still there Tuesday morning, according to Simone Topouzian, public relations assistant.

"One person is in the intensive care unit," Topouzian said. "Another person is suffering from a leg fracture, and is on his way home."

Bruhn said the object of handling a crash emergency is to take care of the individuals that have the most severe injuries first.

"The whole staff of Annapolis should be commended," Bruhn said. "Extra staff members were brought in to assist with the emergency and to handle the media."

In less than 24 hours of the crash, about 15 of those injured and transported to area hospitals were released with treatment of minor injuries.

Student named best

A Hale Creek Elementary fourth-grader recently was named the "Most Beautiful Majorette" in the world for 1990-91.

Megan Wilson, 9, won first place in her age division for baton twirling.

"There were two events in the contest," said Donna Wilson, Megan's mother. "The children had to model a gown and a military outfit."

Wilson started competing just two years ago, but she has been taking lessons for four years.

"She takes private lessons from Lisa Simmons in Taylor," Mrs. Wilson said. "She really started out taking dance lessons, but the school offered baton so she tried it and liked it."

Wilson practices at least an hour each day. She uses two different batons for practice.

"She twirls one and models the other," Mrs. Wilson said. "Her 4-year-old sister, Marissa, also twirls and competes."

Marissa won fourth place for her age category. A student from Romulus Senior High,

Megan Wilson

Anita Ruitz, won fifth place for her twirling entry.

Wilson is no stranger to fame. Her mother said she has more than 30 trophies from past twirling competitions, which include Little Miss Rainbow and Michigan State National Twirler Champion.

Both Megan and Marissa were sponsored by Schalte Trucking Co. in Romulus.

2 new programs taking shape

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Two new programs have been launched at Romulus Senior High School in an effort to prevent students from dropping out.

Linda Bowman is the coordinator for the Mentorship Program and Janice Lee is the coordinator for Peer Tutoring.

"We felt there was a need for a new avenue of motivation to help students," Bowman said. "The idea is for the business community to accept students for a semester. The students will observe and be assigned to a role model, a mentor, from the business."

Bowman will be working hand in hand with Partnerships for Education. About 60 businesses in Romulus are involved with the partnership program which assists district schools to help further education for all students beyond the classroom.

Each business helps the students learn on-the-job skills to use in the future.

"Each individual program will be customized to the mentor and the student," Bowman said. "This program will be open to all levels of employers and occupations."

Police say woman was executed in Romulus

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Inkster police officials have intensified their search for the killer or killers of a 29-year-old Romulus woman.

Police said the woman was slain execution style on a south-side Inkster corner last week.

Police have identified the victim as Cindy Morris. She lived with her boyfriend in the 2800 block of Northline in Romulus.

Morris was unemployed and had no visible means of supporting herself, according to police.

Detective James Vergona of the Inkster Police Department said the investigation has not yielded a motive for the slaying. He said Morris died of gunshot wounds to the head.

He said she was shot twice — once in the head and the other in the back of her neck.

"This appears to be an execution-style slaying," Vergona said. "Unfortunately, there aren't many witnesses, and there isn't a motive."

Detective

According to police reports, Morris' body was found about 5:30 a.m., shortly after residents in the Pine Street and Moore Street area heard shots and a car speed away from the scene. But darkness prevented witnesses from getting a description of the alleged getaway vehicle.

"The family has been very cooperative during our investigation," Vergona said. "However, we don't have much to go on. We're going to need help to get her killer."

Anyone with information about this case is urged to contact Vergona at the Inkster Detective Bureau by calling 563-9856.

Students learn table manners

Officials from the Merriman Executive Inn in Romulus visited Barth Elementary School third-graders last week to teach them table etiquette.

"They were very receptive to the idea," said Bobby Perea, general manager of Merriman. "They enjoyed it, but I don't think they will remember everything we taught them."

Perea, along with Merriman housekeeper Linda Papineau, taught the students which forks to use, how to sit, how to place the flatware after the meal and when to say "please" and "thank you."

"This is the first time we've ever done this with the students," Perea said. "We're planning a few more activities similar to this one with the elementary schools."

Merriman Executive Inn is one of 60 Romulus businesses involved with Partnerships for Education. The program assists district schools to help further education for all students.

Each business helps the students learn on-the-job skills to use in the future.

"We have a partnership with Merriman Executive Inn," said Harold Canon, principal of Barth Elementary. "We're going to use Merriman Executive Inn as a tool to teach the students table etiquette. This is important so the kids are not embarrassed when they go out to eat."

Barth Elementary students recently presented Perea and staff with a banner to thank the group for their assistance in education beyond the classroom doors.

jumped from the wing of the plane.

Another passenger from Flight 1482, John Izzo of Pennsylvania also stayed behind to help others escape. Izzo had been sitting in seat 6-A.

"I helped three passengers escape, but when it first happened I got up and turned to get out of the plane and I saw that there were people who weren't moving. I saw passengers on the left side of the plane who weren't moving at all," Izzo said.

"One man we helped, he was a diabetic. When he jumped from the plane he broke his legs, and part of his ring finger was blown off from the initial explosion.

"The force was so strong. It had to be strong for people to be missing digits," he said.

Many of the passengers on Flight 1482 who survived the collision weren't aware that their plane had been struck by another plane.

"Everyone thought the engine blew. We were commenting as we helped other passengers out of the plane that we were lucky that we didn't get up in the air and then have that engine go," said a passenger from Flight 1482.

Passengers on the 727 thought their plane blew a tire.

"It didn't feel like our plane hit something, it felt like we blew a tire," said Madana Kunjapur.

"The pilot announced that we struck another plane, and that fuel was leaking. Everyone on our plane took their time evacuating. I could see the fuel leaking out near the wing. Everyone remained calm, and we were even joking with each other as we left the plane," he said.

"We were not aware that people on the other plane were seriously injured," he said.

An eyewitness to the collision said he saw the two planes hit.

"I was coming into work, when I saw the 727 land on top of the DC-9. It took the top right off, and then it burst into flames," said Kenneth Lynch, an American Airlines employee.

By late Monday afternoon, airline and airport officials had set up a room in the airport where families of the deceased and the injured met and sought help. Those who lost a family member began the grim task of identifying the bodies Tuesday. All of the families who came to the airport were immediately escorted to the Marriott where arrangements were made.

There are still a lot of unanswered questions, according to officials. During the next few weeks and months, representatives of the National Transportation Safety Board will dissect the collision and piece together exactly what happened.

Some of the factors they will consider include: weather, cockpit operations, tower operations and human operations.

The flight recorder from the DC-9 was flown to Washington, D.C. Monday evening. Investigators on the scene and in Washington will look at all the evidence and will talk to many witnesses from the tower, on the ground and to those passengers who survived in an attempt to find the cause of the collision.

Another question airport, airline and FAA officials will consider is if the use of ground radar could have prevented this accident. Metro Airport doesn't have ground radar, according to airport officials.

With ground radar, the ground controller in the tower would be able to track the whereabouts of all aircraft on the ground. The current system relies on verbal communication between the ground controller and the pilot. In foggy weather it is difficult and sometimes impossible for the ground controller to see the airplanes as they move around on the taxiways, ramps and runways, according to reports from airport workers.

Early reports indicate that the DC-9 may have been lost due to the fog, and that the tower operator had asked the pilot of the DC-9 moments before it was hit to tell the tower where he was. The pilot, according to the reports, didn't know where he was, and he may have missed a turn and wound up on the runway in the path of the 727.

Families of crash victims prepare to battle psychological effects

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Even though the actual crash Monday between the Northwest DC-9 flight 1482 and Boeing 727-200 flight 299 is over, another battle has begun for the victims and their families.

It's going to take several weeks or maybe months before the victims of the Northwest tragedy begin to put the incident into perspective, according to several local psychologists.

On Dec. 3 a DC-9 was lost on an active runway fighting dense fog when it was clipped by a departing Boeing 727-200 bound for Memphis traveling down the runway at 150 mph.

The right wing of the 727 sliced the right side of the DC-9, ripping off its right rear engine. A jet fuel line ignited instantly.

Eight passengers were trapped in the middle or back of the plane, according to airline officials.

It's the unexpected trauma and the emotional details of the crash which damage the victims just as much as any physical injury, according to Dr. Ghulam Qadir, psychiatrist for Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn.

"It's the thing you don't expect that is very dramatic," Qadir said. "Several things could happen to those involved including having extreme fear, extreme anxiety, they could see the scene over and over again and have nightmares."

The victims of flight 1482 could experience physical sickness due to the emotional impact of the crash including sleep problems, loss of appetite and an ill feeling for surviving while some people died on the plane, Qadir said.

"These symptoms could be chronic for some time or they could be short lived," Qadir said. "They aren't necessarily a problem for life."

Nightmares and a phobia of flying could develop, according to Qadir.

Ways to get rid of the emotional grief of the accident include talking the whole incident out with someone in order to ventilate the feelings.

"For some people a support group from the same crash is good to form. If a support group or talking to family doesn't help in the initial phase, then get some professional help," Qadir said.

Pat Dresch, member of the Spirit Lives On which is a support group from the flight 255 disaster, suggests victims of flight 1482 find a support group outside of the family because family members feel the pain of the incident just as much.

Dresch lost her husband Lewis in the 255 tragedy. They would have been married 23 years.

"You definitely need counseling," Dresch said. "That goes for husbands, wives and children. Find a support group. You have to talk about it until you don't want to talk about it any more."

Dresch said her life will never be the same again. She depends on her faith to pull her through the hard times.

"It takes a lot of time to pull yourself together," Dresch said.

A few members of the Spirit Lives On are opening their doors to any victims from flight 1482 who would like to talk about the experience or find out how to set up a support group. Anyone interested can call Kay Gleason at 781-5170, Betty Polec at 263-5555 or Dresch at 247-1680.

Marilynn G. Rusche, psychologist and Clinic Manager for the Westland Counseling Services, believes people are stronger than they think they are and can overcome tragedies.

"We face risks every day," Rusche said. "I was a victim of an armed robbery and a mugging. We take risks every day. I think the human need to survive is very strong."

The best remedy to survive a tragedy such as a plane crash, Rusche said, is to deal with the problem openly and get it over with.

"You almost have to grieve what has happened," Rusche said.

Hospitals were ready for call

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Officials at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne were definitely ready for the emergency call from Detroit Metropolitan Airport which came in about 2:05 p.m. Monday.

About 20 physicians were called in, a "Code 11" was announced on the public address system and nurses were scurrying about to organize an emergency operation for at least 50 victims of the fatal crash that were expected at Annapolis.

The last time Annapolis had such an army of casualties was August 1987 from Northwest Flight 255. Only one survivor, 4-year-old Cecilia Cichan, was brought to Annapolis that night.

Within half an hour from the airport emergency call, a media room for reporters was set up and a checklist was being looked over to see which patients could be released to make room for the injured.

"Everything went very smoothly," said Simone Topouzian, public relations assistant. "There were no problems. Chuck Bruhn (vice president-administrator for Annapolis) and Pat O'Dowdy (public relations specialist for Oakwood) were coordinating everything."

Bruhn scheduled a variety of press conferences throughout the day updating reporters on the injured. He brought in extra hospital staff to handle the emergency.

Bruhn applauded all the hospital staff for a job well done.

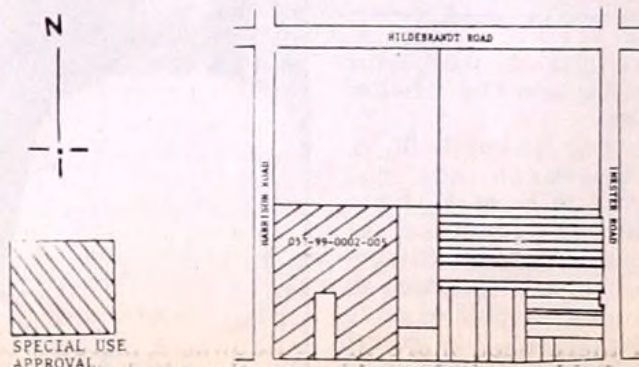

Hospital personnel are constantly drilled in emergency procedures throughout the year. Annapolis officials said at least two drills are staged each year.

Local fire teams contribute

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

Runway Tragedy

The collision of two planes at Metro Airport Monday put the Mutual Aid Task Force to a test. Rescue teams from all over southeastern Michigan are being commended for the way the rescue was handled.

"I think the way it mobilized as far as what they've been training for, the whole mutual aid plan for disasters, it was an A-plus effort for all of the police and fire departments in the area," said Joseph Benyo, a former battalion fire chief for Westland and disaster preparedness leader.

County officials have reported that the on-site firefighters were on the scene within minutes.

"The call came in at 1:45 p.m., and our firefighters responded and had smothered the main fuselage of the plane by 1:48 p.m., and the rest of the flames were smothered by 1:55 p.m.," said Irma Clark, press secretary for Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

As soon as the call came in to the airport fire department, it also went out to all of the various cities that participate in the Mutual Aid Task Force.

The Mutual Aid Task Force includes fire and police officials from "omulus, Wayne, Westland, Canton Township, Belleville, Van Buren Township, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Redford, Plymouth Township and the City of Plymouth, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Taylor and Superior Township.

When a major disaster occurs the task force immediately rolls into action. Another disaster task force, Health Emergency Medical System also springs into action when a disaster occurs. The two efforts combined include: doctors, firefighters, police officers, nurses, paramedics and countless volunteers.

"Had there been more injured a field hospital would have been assembled to give victims immediate care," Benyo said.

When Northwest Flight 1482 became engulfed with flames and smoke, the combination of fuel, plastic and synthetic materials burning were the most harmful elements the passengers had to deal with, according to Benyo.

"Sixty percent of fire deaths in the United States are from smoke inhalation," Benyo said. "When toxic smoke and fumes soak into your lungs it is very deadly."

One survivor, who suffered severe smoke inhalation from the collision Monday, is still recovering in Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan Hospital.

Benyo remembers what it was like to fight fires without the use of a breathing apparatus.

Since the last airplane crash near Metro on Aug. 16, 1987, when Northwest Flight 255 crashed onto Middlebelt Road, task force officials have studied the emergency plan and since improved upon it from what they learned during that crash, Benyo said.

"Unlike 255, we were able to get information out to the media in a very short time," he said.

Benyo was impressed with how quickly county officials responded to the media.

"Within hours the Wayne County Executive, Ed McNamara, was on television talking to reporters. Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano also was on television telling reporters how the rescue effort was going," Benyo said.

One part of the disaster plan that has yet to be tested, is the availability of space and medical personnel at area hospitals. Even with all of the firefighters, police officers, nurses, paramedics and volunteers, the question of whether there is enough emergency room space is an area that has gone untested.

Since the early 1970s, when Wayne County sold Wayne County General Hospital to private owners, there has been the question of whether or not the remaining area hospitals could handle numerous victims with serious injuries.

Before Wayne County General closed, a trauma unit was on call at all times. The closest hospital with a trauma unit is the University of Michigan Hospital, according to one fire department official.

When the collision occurred Monday, five area hospitals were standing by immediately after the crash. Those hospitals include: Annapolis, Garden City, Heritage, Oakwood and the University of Michigan Hospital.

"When you're as active as we are, you need a health plan that helps you stay that way."

"Our family likes to keep busy. We go camping, skiing, canoeing, swimming... you name it and we probably do it. We also do all we can to stay healthy. After all, nothing can spoil a weekend more than if one of us gets sick."

"So when it came to choosing a health benefits plan, we picked one that would fit our lifestyle. One that realizes the importance of staying well, not just getting better once you're sick. We chose Care Choices HMO."

"With Care Choices, our family is covered for many kinds of preventive care, like lab tests, immunizations, x-rays and doctor visits. Everything's so convenient, with a minimum of paperwork."

"Of course, we wouldn't belong to Care Choices if we couldn't get our care from some of the best doctors and hospitals around. And comprehensive coverage for hospitalization and emergency care worldwide are important features, too. But Care Choices even goes beyond that, offering members discounts on various health-related classes and programs. Now, that's a health plan!"

Santa will be at the shelter from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. to listen to pets' requests.

In addition, a holiday craft and bake sale will be staged.

Program to guarantee care

More than 14,000 children of uninsured families will receive health care through a unique private-public partnership between the state and federal government and Blue Cross/Blue Shield. Michigan has received a $6.6 million three-year federal grant to help fund two pilot programs providing health care for children of low-income families who have no medical insurance. Blue Cross will administer the program.

Adoptee records may be opened

Under a recently introduced bill, adult adoptees hoping to find out about their past would have automatic access to adoption records, unless a birth parent filed a formal denial within one year of relinquishing custody. Sealed adoption records often contain essential medical and genetic background that isn't available anywhere else. Adoptees would have to be at least 18 years old before they could have access to the information.

Commissioners eye choices

At least eight people are interested in filling the vacant seat on the Wayne County Commission. The seat will become available Dec. 10 after Commissioner Milton Mack leaves to become a probate judge.

The commission can appoint an interim commissioner until an election can be staged to elect a new commissioner.

The exact date of the election, which would be preceded by a primary election staged in February, has not been established.

"The general election will most likely take place in April," Mack said.

If the commission chooses to appoint someone to the commission, interviews will be staged with the applicants, he said.

Within the last two years, the commission has had to appoint interim commissioners to fill vacancies left by three commissioners. Edward Plawewski, Arthur Carter and Richard Manning.

Milton Mack

Since the new county charter was established in 1982, five of the original 15 commissioners are now judges.

"That means there are no lawyers left on the commission," Mack said.

Four of the candidates who have expressed an interest in the position include: Bryan Amann, noise czar for Wayne County; Robert Beeny, Wayne councilman; Cindy Burgess, executive director for the Canton Community Fund and president of the Public Research Committee; and Barbara Rogalle Miller, a Belleville attorney.

The commission has 30 days from the day Mack leaves to appoint an interim commissioner.

The interim commissioner does not have to run for the position during the election.

Letters, gifts go to Gulf

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

With the help of area community and business leaders, Santa Claus will be making a stop in Saudi Arabia on Christmas.

In addition to sending cards and letters to local servicemen, members of the Belleville Central Business Community are collecting donations to mail Christmas packages to area servicemen who are participating in Operation Desert Shield.

Cards and letters also are being sent by the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce, youngsters in Van Buren Public Schools, the Van Buren Township Board and scout troops.

At the Oct. 16 township board meeting, Supervisor David Jacokes distributed cards to the audience and requested they add their signatures to those of township employees and board members.

"I was overseas for three years, and I know how important mail is," Jacokes said. "The most important thing in the world is receiving mail from home."

Jacokes said mail is especially appreciated by those who have no close family members to write to them, and the supervisor encouraged residents to obtain addresses of area servicemen and also to send letters and cards directed to "any service member."

"One of the main things that keeps us going over here is mail call, and thanks to your paper (The Enterprise), I get a little more than usual," wrote Campbell, who is serving with the 101st Airborne Division in Operation Desert Shield.

Campbell writes that some of his friends have received many packages.

"We have lots of hygiene products supplied by the Red Cross, and everyone is getting fat on the candy and cookies," Campbell said.

"Some of the things we could use over here are canned foods, socks, AA batteries and some 35mm film. I also didn't plan for winter dress, so sweat-shirts, long-sleeved T-shirts and things like that would help us out. Most of the guys I know wear large or extra-large shirts," Campbell wrote.

Downtown businesses and the homes of many individuals are sporting red, white and blue ribbons in support of the servicemen participating in Operation Desert Shield.

Sailor sends greetings to hometown folks

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Letters from home are appreciated by the servicemen deployed in the Persian Gulf area, and many of them are writing home to express their thanks.

The following letter was received from Anthony Butts of Belleville, who is aboard the U.S.S. Iwo Jima:

"I just want to thank you for all of your support for what is going on over here in the Gulf. I have been getting a lot of letters from the people in Belleville and the cities around it. When I get mail from people back home, it makes me feel like I am over here for every one back home. And, when they tell me how proud they are of all of the servicemen and servicemen over here, well that makes us feel proud of ourselves for being over here for everyone back in the states.

"I hope you will pass on to the rest of the staff at The Enterprise how grateful I am to everyone at the paper for recognizing all of the people that are serving over here from Belleville. When I get back from the Gulf, I want to come to The Enterprise and shake everyone's hand. And I want to thank everyone in person for what they have done to keep the people of Belleville up to date on what is going on with the people of Belleville that are serving over in the Gulf.

"I don't think you have a picture of the ship I am on, so I am going to send one in this letter. I hope you put it in the paper. How could I go about getting a subscription to your paper? I would love to get a paper from back home, so please send me any forms that I would need to get your paper.

"I just wanted to tell you and your staff thank you for your support and everything else you are doing for us over here," said Anthony Butts in his Nov. 19 letter.

Arrangements are now being made through the Belleville Central Business Community to provide newspapers at a reduced price to send to local servicemen.

Individuals or businesses may purchase a one-year subscription to The Enterprise and sponsor a free subscription for a serviceman or servicewoman at no additional cost.

Go-cart track halted

A decision by the Van Buren Township Board has stopped a proposed go-cart track in its tracks.

Leonard Armstrong, owner of Armstrong's Funland, had requested a special use approval for a go-cart track on his property, located at 8787 Belleville Road. Armstrong had said the special use would be compatible with adjacent land and buffering would keep noise levels down.

Armstrong's plan called for 12 or less cars on the track at one time, lighting to be shielded from residential areas and sound levels which would not exceed 65 decibels at the property line. Before the decision, Armstrong demonstrated his go-carts to the planners and board to illustrate their moderate level of noise.

The project had come under fire from residents of an adjacent mobile home park.

A recommendation from the township planners, Wade-Trim/Impact, called for denial of the special use because of potential noise generated by the track and its incompatibility with the township master plan.

Museum opens doors

A nostalgic trip to the Christmas season of the mid-1800s is as close as the Belleville Area Museum.

Through the end of the holiday season, visitors may view an old-fashioned Christmas between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. weekdays, according to BAM Curator Fonie Butler.

Scaled-down replicas of 11 historic buildings, decorated with holiday greenery, are located on the Main Street of the museum. Visitors can view the replicas of mid-1800s life plus see a mural of the Belleville area, a quilt from the early 1900s and many artifacts.

Youngsters from the Head Start program, Girl Scouts and 11 members of the South Middle School National Honor Society decorated the buildings and Christmas trees in the museum.

Butler said recent donations will be added to the exhibits. The blacksmith shop is nearly completed and a pavilion for the display of farm machinery will soon open, he said.

The museum is located in the former Quirk Elementary School, 46270 Ayres Road, Belleville.

Clubs join together at holidays

Members of two women's organizations are working together on several community projects.

At a joint meeting of the Belleville Women's Study Club and the GFWC Belleville Area Intermediate Study Club, plans were made to coordinate an adopt-a-girl program at Girlstown and present a gift to each girl housed in the facility.

A Girlstown Ingathering, co-hosted by the intermediate group members and the Ann Arbor Women's Club, prompted gifts of school supplies, household items, bushels of apples and paper projects to the girls home, said Sandra Lauth, chairman of the event.

The two study clubs voted to support the arts in the community by purchasing an advertisement in the program of the Belleville Music Committee-sponsored Dec. 9 Holiday Concert. The concert will be staged at the Belleville High School auditorium. The Ann Arbor Concert Band will be featured.

Following the business meeting of the two women's groups, a program was presented on dance instructor Jan Oliver by Gloria Gardner.

Quality job by all involved

Metro Detroit residents are not strangers to the devastation of airline disaster. In 1987, we watched in awe as hundreds of passengers lost their lives on the ill-fated Flight 255.

This week we were reminded of the frailties of the airline system and we were once again rendered speechless as we watched an airplane burst into flames. Luckily, if one can consider this luck, only a few lost their lives. So many more lives could have been lost.

It was clear to see in the aftermath of the airport disaster, however, that area emergency service personnel and airport personnel learned their lesson in 1987.

The hundreds of workers who helped relax passengers, those brave passengers who helped the injured escape the burning plane, the nurses who rushed to the hospitals to help and the firefighters who performed countless brave and spine-tingling tasks all deserve our thanks and admiration.

Without each of them, more lives could have been lost and more of the living would have been left to their own devices. God bless you all.

'I made the wrong choice'

The battle about abortion rages. What I have to say about the subject is valid since I had one in 1980. Here is what the "right to choose" means to me: Planned Parenthood said my pregnancy was a "blob of tissue" as easily removed as a wart. "Sounds harmless," I reasoned, so I opted for abortion. The options of adoption of single parenting were never explained. They arranged an appointment for me at the abortion clinic.

Neither prior to nor during the abortion were any pain-killers administered. I was fully conscious. When the suction machine was activated, I felt my baby being torn from my body. Looking down and over I saw what appeared to be the chunks of my baby mixed with a lot of blood. "I killed my baby," I screamed. When the counselor told me to be quiet, I felt very sad and alone. That was not the worst. In the years following, I experienced deep psychological problems which resulted in suicidal depressions, nightmares about dead babies and intense feelings of guilt. I was not mourning the loss of my "blob of tissue," but rather of a real baby, my baby. I wish Planned Parenthood had told me the truth.

By now the reader may be asking herself, "Isn't this an extreme example of an abortion experience?" Actually, no. Mine was a routine suction abortion. Millions just like mine have been performed. If abortion is good for women, why are 30 percent unable to get pregnant again? Why the problem with subsequent tubal pregnancies, miscarriages and still births? Since when has death become good for us?

Good deed deserves mention

I hope you will give me a moment to tell a human interest story.

To make a long story short, I had my husband's check, which we foolishly pre-signed, so that I would be able to cash it at a neighboring store, on my way to do some Christmas shopping.

I unexpectedly stopped at Ken's Country Produce, on Ford Road, in Westland, to look at some grave coverings, where I unknowingly lost the check.

When I discovered the check missing, I went in to use the store phone. I entered the store and was informed that April, an employee at Ken's, had found the check, called information to get our telephone number, then she proceeded to notify my husband. My husband then called the store to forewarn them I was coming and what had happened.

I have always had good feelings toward the people at Ken's, but this just re-emphasized how great they really are.

My sincere thanks to April, for saving our family's Christmas, and to you for letting me share it with the community.

Guest editorial

Wayne businessman slams councilman

My name is Don Farmer and I am the chairman of the Wayne Charter Committee and I am happy to respond to Councilman Thomas Kelly's editorial. I respond to each of his points as follows:

1. Yes, it is true that my company was granted a 50-percent tax abatement for six years. This is not a grant or a undocumented loan and is completely legal. I don't understand the significance of this issue, as many businesses in Wayne have received similar tax abatements for the same or greater length of time. The tax abatement is well deserved as my company has employed many citizens of Wayne over the years. Further, I believe that the tax abatement is a reward for keeping my business in the city of Wayne for over 14 years.

2. Yes, it is true that my company is delinquent in payment of taxes due the city. I would have to question your source of information, as my company and I are less than one year behind in the payment of taxes. I guess that this is another example of poor record-keeping on behalf of the city. My company and I have regularly paid or taxes for the past 17 years. Again, I ask what is the significance of this issue? Does confirming that my company is behind in taxes make me eligible to receive an unsecured and undocumented loan from the city without a loan agreement or repayment schedule as the Associated Newspapers did in 1983 when they were behind in their taxes?

3. The first recall attempt did not succeed as you know, because the Wayne County Circuit Court threw out the petitions, which contained nearly 1,400 signatures, because the language on the petitions did not state a specific reason. As you know, since you filed the lawsuit, the lawsuit was filed against the Election Commission, not against the committee or our attorneys. You alleged in your lawsuit that the Election Commission, which is composed of the Chief Judge of the County Probate Court, the County Clerk and the County Treasurer, illegally approved the petition language. Yes, we relied on their approval of the language and obtained 1,400 signatures for the recall of you and your fellow councilmembers on petitions that did not contain any reason at all. We did not receive bad legal advice as you allege, we properly acted under the authority of the Election Commission. If you want to talk about bad legal advice, perhaps you should talk about the quality of the legal advice given to council. The city attorney allowed the planning commission to violate the Open Meetings Act for over six years by not keeping minutes. The city attorney sat through numerous council meetings and saw that the planning commission did not present meeting minutes on the consent calendar as had previously been done, without ever raising a question to this illegal practice. In fact, the city attorney has admitted to the committee's attorneys that he did not even know that the planning commission was supposed to keep minutes. This is in my opinion legal malpractice. Further, the city attorney sat idly by while the council gave unsecured loans to the Associated Newspapers and Tom's Tavern without requiring a loan agreement or repayment schedule. In my opinion, if the city attorney was competent he would have made sure the agreements were signed. Instead, he waited until August of this year to draft a two-page agreement which says next to nothing. I am not a lawyer, but I would have to question whether that document is valid. While we are talking about bad legal advice, why doesn't the city attorney write legal opinions and file them in the city clerk's office as the city charter requires? It is because he is lazy or that he has never bothered to read the charter? If that provision of the charter is impractical, why not review and amend the charter—does that sound familiar to you Mr. Kelly? If anyone has received bad legal advice, I believe it is the city.

4. No, I am not afraid to appear at public forums to discuss issues. As a citizen of this country, I have a right to be represented by an attorney, and I have chosen to exercise that right. Our attorneys have done a fine job for us and appear at public forums to discuss the issues because they are able to discuss the issues better than I. The problem I have with public forums is that Mayor Norton refuses to intelligently discuss issues. He would rather attack and discredit myself and our committee rather than address the issues we raise. For instance, at the special council meeting of Oct. 26, 1990, the mayor refused to produce audits that account for the loans made to the Associated Newspapers and Tom's Tavern. Our attorneys have made a formal request to produce those audits and the city has failed to produce them. What is the city trying to hide?

5. I do not know of any amount of money that the city has spent due to our committee's activities. What I do know is that through the efforts of our committee, we have recovered the $17,000 loan to the Associated Newspapers that probably never would have been repaid. What I also know is that the Wayne City Council has spent and cost the citizens thousands of dollars on questionable projects; like spending $190,000 to buy property in Romulus against Romulus' wishes, $20,000 per year for the last three years for payment of taxes on that Romulus property, $600,000 to turn that property into a wetland and what about the $500,000 the city was ordered by a court to pay to property owners for over-assessment of their property? If our committee has cost the city any money, and I have no proof that it has, it is a small amount compared to what the city has foolishly spent. Furthermore, if that is the case, it is money well spent, better than money lost and wasted by the city due to poor management.

6. I do not now nor have I ever had any ambition to become a public official; elected, appointed or otherwise. There is no truth to your assertion that I want to be an appointed official to forgive my tax indebtedness. If I were a public official, and again I have no present intent or desire to become a public official, I would not engage in the self-dealing that the mayor and your fellow councilmembers currently do. Your time would be better spent questioning your fellow councilmen on their questionable practices. For example, the mayor leases office space to the city's "independent" public auditors; this is clearly a conflict of interest. In addition, I have discovered that the mayor has bought property from the city within the years time, returned it to the city for a full refund. This is a highly unusual practice. Also, why didn't the mayor bother to show up at the public hearing to rezone his Michigan Avenue property back in 1988? Other property owners are required to attend public hearings when their property is rezoned. Also, why don't you question the mayor on why he recommended his childhood friends Thomas Daily to be city manager, when Mr. Daily does not possess the required qualifications under the charter? Councilman Rowe's electrical company, I understand has many if not all of the city electrical contracts. Councilman Beeny, who brought the motion to give the Associated Newspapers an unsecured loan without an agreement or repayment schedule, moved his financial planning business into the Associated Newspapers' building shortly after the council, on his motion, gave the newspaper the unsecured loan. Why have you not questioned and given a public report on Councilman Weyand's opportunities to be dishonest?

7. The issue here is not whether our committee has the ability to pay our legal fees, but your reluctance to pay legal fees to us under a state law that authorizes payment of legal fees if a violation has occurred. I cannot question the state legislature's intent in passing a law that would encourage citizen groups like ours to pursue actions against public officials when those public officials commit a violation of state law. The attorney fee provision is there to encourage prosecution of corrupt public officials. Without this attorney fee provision there would be no incentive to prosecute public officials. I am sorry you disagree with such laws, but that issue would be better addressed to your state representative.

8. No, our committee is not going to deceive the people into signing the petitions with false promises. We don't need to, anyway. We did not do that in our last petition effort and we will not do so this time. The rumors that we did so in the last petition drive were circulated by the subjects of a recall solely to discredit our groups and are not true. We obtained 1,400 signatures on petitions that contained no reason at all; we believe we will obtain even more signatures on these petitions which state specific reasons.

All-area football: Wheatley, state champs form dream team nucleus

Tyrone Wheatley – The best athlete to be produced in this area for the past quarter of a century, Wheatley was the mainstay behind the Bulldogs' championship season. The 6-2, 210-pound Dearborn Heights-Robichaud senior set all kinds of records and was one of two players from Coach Bob Yauck's lineup to be named All-State. He scored 253 points, rushed for 2,010 yards and scored 33 touchdowns. At mid-season, Yauck switched Wheatley from quarterback to running back.

Ron Hunter – Like Wheatley, this 6-4, 205-pound Belleville senior is an all-around athlete who also excels in basketball and track and field. Hunter was one of the key reasons no one took the Belleville Tigers lightly. He helped keep his team in all their games this year, and was picked by coaches as a member of the All-Wolverine 'A' Conference team. Hunter also played linebacker for the Tigers and was one of the leading tacklers.

Eben Smith – The only member of the Romulus High team to earn All-South Central Conference recognition, Smith, a 5-6, 160-pound speedy tailback, became the No. 1 Eagle running back. "Smith was the team leader and provided this young team with the inspiration to compete," Romulus Coach Dan Henry said. As the team captain, Smith also saw action as a defensive back where he intercepted five passes. A senior, Eben has played varsity football the past three years.

Todd Yocum – Belleville opponents had a tough time stopping the 6-0, 170-pound senior quarterback, who has an excellent throwing arm. A fine outside runner as well, Yocum could break tackle-after-tackle. He managed to keep the Tigers in the thick of the conference title race most of the season. Belleville lost three games by a total of four points. If those losses had gone the other way, Belleville could have ended up with its first Wolverine 'A' football title.

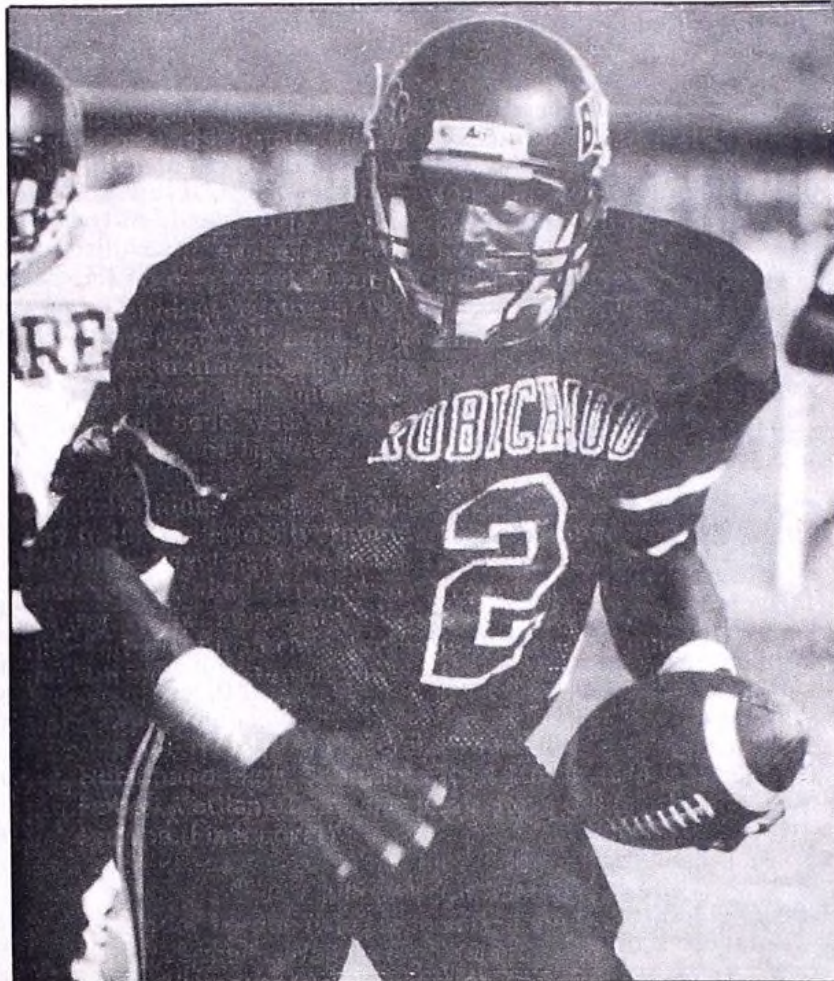

Greg Murphy – Whenever Robichaud quarterbacks Andy Parham and Tyrone Wheatley planned to pass, you could bet Murphy would be the one on the receiving end. The 6-3, 175-pound senior grabbed 17 passes for 247 yards and three for touchdowns. He also doubled as a defensive halfback and accounted for nine interceptions, one he carried back for a touchdown. Murphy also was picked as a member of the Suburban Athletic Conference and the All-Metro teams.

Chris Zaccaria, a 5-8, 175-pound Belleville running back, was the ballcarrier that Tigers went to when they needed those extra yards and TDs. Opponents knew they had to stop this speedy and deceptive back if they wanted to stop Belleville. Not many were successful. "Zac" rushed for 901 yards and scored 14 touchdowns in a season that could have been a championship year if the breaks had gone for Coach Sam Villa's crew. Watch for Zaccaria in some college lineup in the near future.

Joe Reyna – A strong one-on-one blocker, Reyna has two years of varsity experience behind him and will help form the nucleus of the 1991 Robichaud team. A 5-11, 185-pound athlete who "completed his assignments 99.9 percent of the time," according to Coach Robert Yauck, Reyna has a wealth of untapped athletic ability that might be harnessed for a repeat Class B title a year from now.

Yauck is coach of year

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The Associated Newspapers is proud to name Robert Yauck its 1990 high school football Coach of the Year.

It took 21 years of hard work for the Dearborn Heights-Robichaud coach to reach the zenith of his profession.

Yauck always seemed to put together a lineup of gifted athletes who loved to compete and hated to lose.

The Bulldogs this year accomplished what no other Yauck or Robichaud football team has been able to do. They beat Kingsford 21-7 to win their first Class B state title.

"That is the success of this year's team," said Yauck, whose Bulldogs posted a 12-1 overall record. "I have had some outstanding teams in the past that have even gone undefeated, but none was so dedicated to winning as this group."

The Bulldogs worked their way to the Pontiac Silverdome the hard way: They beat the then-No. 1 ranked state team, Monroe St. Mary's. They also knocked off Lutheran North and Marine City in the playoffs.

Bob Yauck
Coach of the Year

Their only setback during the historic 1990 campaign was a loss to Highland Park, a Class A team. The defeat forced the Bulldogs to hand over a share of the Suburban Athletic Conference title.

During his tenure as the head coach at Robichaud, Yauck has amassed a 143-103-3 record.

At mid-season, there were rumors Yauck would step down after the current year if his team won the state championship. However, Yauck has dispelled the rumor, saying he loved the sport and his players.

"No, I am not ready to retire from football," Yauck said. "I love what I am doing to step down at this juncture. I am having a lot of fun."

Ernie Baskin proved he is among the best prep football players in the state this year. The 6-4, 210-pound senior two-way tackle was named to the All-State team after helping the Bulldogs win their first state football title. "He just dominated both sides of the line," Robichaud Coach Robert Yauck said. "And you could always rely on him to open up the holes for Wheatley or come through with the big tackle on defense. He is one of the finest I have ever coached."

Dennis Norton checks in at 5-9, 255 pounds. He helped form the wall for Robichaud ball-carriers. One of the pleasant surprises in a year few will forget, Norton was also a menace on defense. "He's a steady blocker," Yauck said. "He gave us flexibility up front to do many things." Norton was also recognized as one the best tackles in the SAC conference this year.

Walt Ostrowski was called on to do many things for the Belleville Tigers, according to Coach Sam Villa. A 5-9, 215-pound senior guard on offense, Ostrowski seldom was off the field as he was also cast in a linebacker's role on defense. He was one of the Tigers' leading tacklers and was awarded All-conference consideration for his efforts.

Sonny Cooper, a 6-0, 205-pound senior guard is categorized as a "hard-nose" football player who is also a natural team leader by Yauck. A sure tackler and blocker, Cooper was one of a handful of Robichaud seniors who became what Yauck said a strong group determined to go all the way this year – and did.

Steve Wygonik, a 6-0, 185-pound Belleville junior, proved he is one of the best linebackers in the area in a season of outstanding defensive specialists. Wygonik has a year of eligibility remaining and should lead the Tiger charge for a conference title next year. He is one of the most aggressive players in the conference and the opposition knew better than to test his side of the line.

Ralph Irwin, a 5-10, 175-pound senior fullback/defensive end, provided Wheatley with steady blocking. When Wheatley had his footing, there was no stopping him. "Irwin was the most improved player on this team, and his blocking provided our backfield the protection it usually needed. He was also one of the unheralded players because the media usually overlooked his contributions," Yauck said.

Andrew Parham stepped into the Robichaud spotlight in mid-season when Yauck decided to move Tyrone Wheatley to the tailback slot. Parham didn't flinch and carried his team the rest of the way. Teamed with Wheatley in the defensive backfield, Parham displayed flashes of greatness as he finished with five interceptions – one he returned for a 45-yard touchdown in the opening game of the season.

Has wheel of fortune changed in Huron favor ?

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Has the wheel of basketball fortune finally turned in favor of New Boston Huron? Over the past decade, the perennial conference door-mats have been pushed around the basketball courts. The Chiefs finished with a 7-16 record a year ago and have never been taken seriously in talk of title rights. That could all be a thing of the past this season. When Coach Terry Suemnick introduces his lineup Tuesday night at Dexter, there will be three 6-5 players with a pair of experienced guards in the lineup. How times have changed.

Riverview has enough holdovers from last year's team to make them tough.

— Terry Suemnick
Huron cage coach

"This could be a turnaround season for us," said Suemnick, who was unexpectedly shoved into the spotlight late in the 1989-90 season when he was named interim coach after former coach, Larry Swick, resigned. Of those seven victories a year ago, five were posted in the stretch. The Chiefs managed to put together a five-game winning streak before they reached the Class B district finals. But Grosse Ile knocked them out of the playoffs. The team this year, with 6-5 shot-blocking and rebound-hauling Matt Holtan plus the return of 6-5, 250-pound Bill Phipps and 6-5 Jason Hall, the Chiefs have frightening potential. This may be the first Huron men's basketball team in two decades to challenge for a conference title. In the pre-season, it has been fashionable to give Riverview and Grosse Ile the nod as the title favorites. Understandably, the two schools have been cage fortresses in the past, and Suemnick believes that Riverview again should be established as the team to beat in the conference. "(Riverview) has enough holdovers from last year's team to make them tough," Suemnick said. "Then there is Grosse Ile. They always seem to come up with a contender. Huron has lived and died with their guards in the past. The Chiefs also traditionally have been strong in the backcourt. This year will be no exception. A pair of seniors — Ron Nowitzke (5-8) and Dave Delano (5-7) — know their way around the basketball court. There is also an experienced supporting cast, thanks to the return of Matt Hamilton (5-9) and Kevin Devonch (5-8).

St. Anthony wins cage opener 29-26

Kevin Pyche's basket in overtime lifted the St. Anthony-Belleville sixth-grade boy's basketball team to a 29-26 overtime victory over St. Stephen-New Boston in the Catholic Youth Organization basketball opener for both teams. The decisive basket climaxed a 21-8 second-half rally for the Warriors, who entered the locker room at halftime down by 18-8. Balanced scoring was the key to the victory. Pyche and Matt LeVaute each tallied seven points. Teammate Anthony Short came up with a team-high seven rebounds. Guard Zach Wilkerson contributed three points, along with several key assists and steals. Kevin Mack scored seven points for St. Stephen, nine coming in the first half. Jason Champ chipped in seven points in a losing cause. St. Anthony will seek its second straight victory at 3:30 p.m. Saturday at home against Wyandotte Catholic. Admission is free.

Sports line is open Friday until midnight games will appear in the Sunday edition of The Associated Newspapers. Coaches are urged to call in game results immediately after games by dialing 729-4000. Coaches who need additional information should contact ANP staff writers Tom Mooradian or Sean Kelly.

Ford Motor Co. explores alternative fuel options

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

Automotive analysts have been expressing the need for alternative fuels since the 1970s. Ford Motor Co. has been actively pursuing fuel alternatives for more than 20 years.

With the problems in the Middle East, the need for alternative fuel sources has only been compounded. Legislation concerning the environment has pushed oil companies and car companies like Ford to limit the amount of toxic fumes that are spewed into the environment.

Ford fuel expert Joy Stinson believes that methanol and ethanol have the best chance to become the number-one source of fuel in the country.

In a report, she stated that ethanol and methanol are good substitutes because the fuels are liquids with high octane quality. These two types of fuel are also burned efficiently in the engines that are in cars now.

Of the two, she stated that methanol is more energy efficient because it contains less energy per gallon which accounts for more miles per gallon.

Ford engineers are focusing their attention on engines that will run on methanol.

In California, Ford engineers are presently testing vehicles that operate on methanol. From this program Ford engineers have come up with the FFV or the flexible fuel vehicle.

This vehicle can operate on gasoline or 85 percent methanol or a combination of methanol and gasoline, according to the report.

One of the areas, that needs to be perfected is the durability of the vehicles that run on an alternative fuel.

In 1989 Ford officials working with the California Energy Commission provided 210 FFV Crown Victoria sedans and station wagons, and 10 of the 210 the vehicles the company provided to the state are being used by the California Highway Patrol.

"Ford believes that a flexible fuel vehicle is the bridge technology to get from gasoline to a dedicated alcohol fuel fleet," Stinson states in the report.

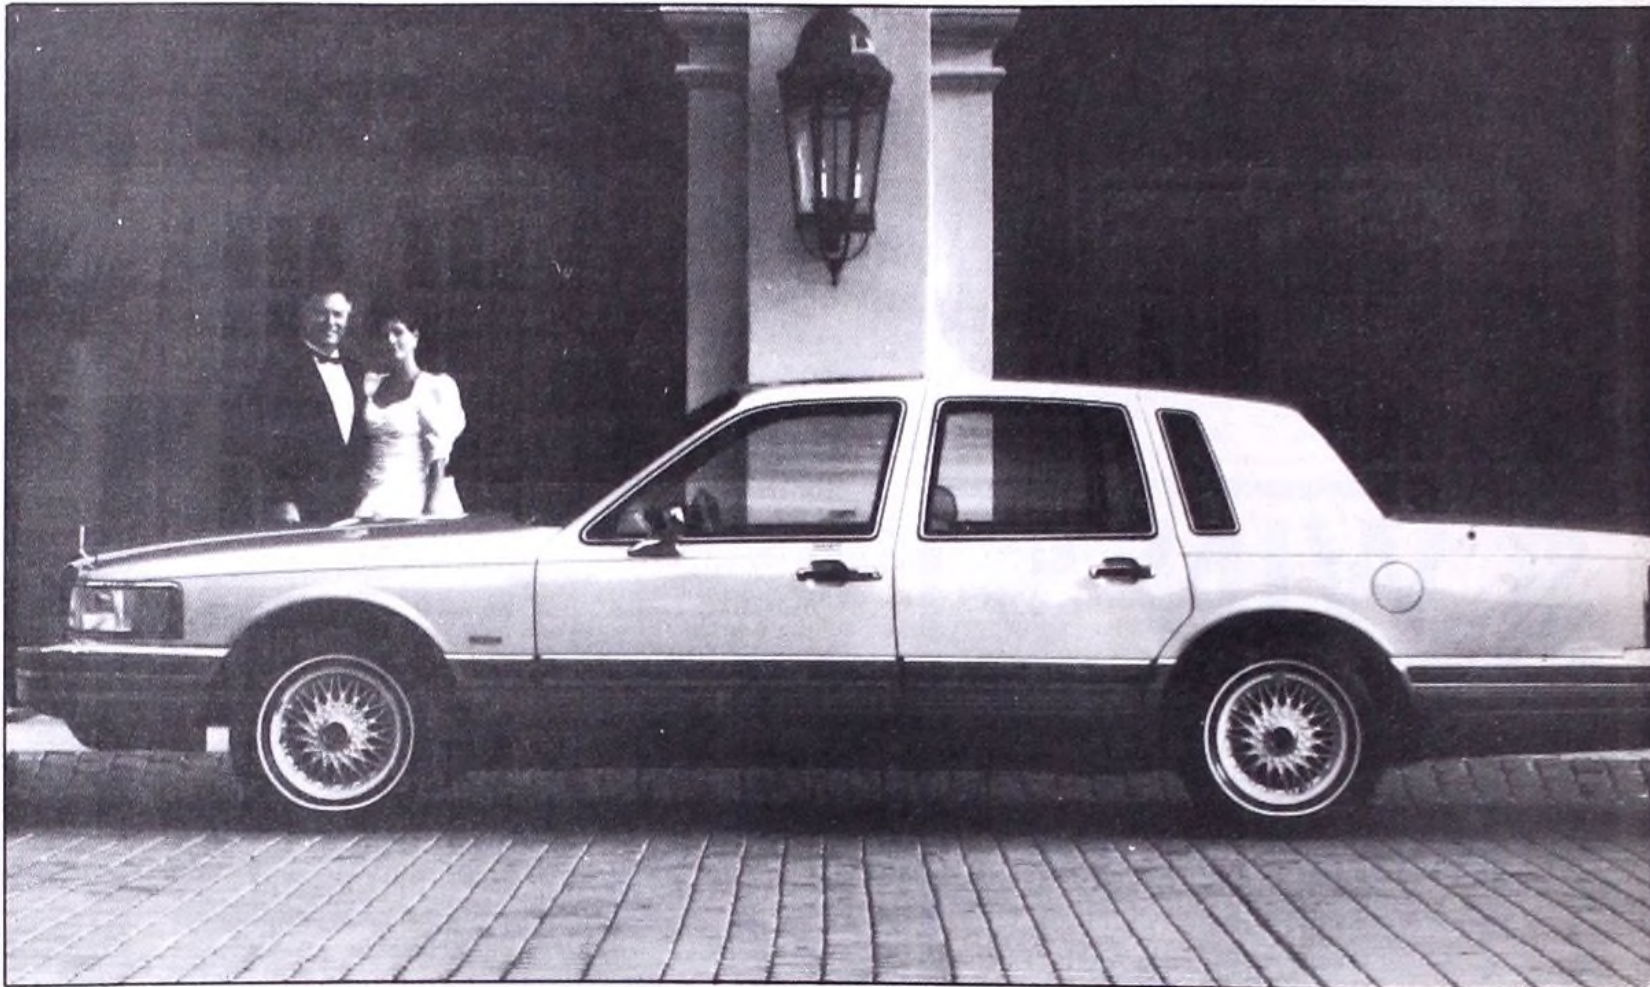

Another source being tested by Ford and other automotive companies is electricity. Most environmentalists favor this form of energy because it would totally eliminate emissions, and noise pollution caused by cars could be eliminated.

Some of the problems Ford engineers and other car company engineers are having with electricity is the length of time the vehicle can run before needing to be recharged.

Electric vehicles can only be driven about 100 miles, the report stated. An electric vehicle also has to be recharged every eight hours.

Another problem associated with the electrically powered vehicle is the car performance. An electrically powered vehicle doesn't accelerate as fast as a gasoline powered vehicle, according to Stinson.

Ford has developed an electric engine that engineers made to fit on a Mercury LN-7. Engineers recently adapted the electrically powered motor fuel alternatives in its research and development. ANP special photo to a second prototype which is known as the EXT-Aerostar.

"The EXT-II Aerostar has an advanced propulsion system that features an easily maintained design with fewer parts," the report stated.

Ford engineers are presently working on an electric vehicle they refer to as the milk float. This car is already being used in England. The milk float will not surpass the speed of 30 mph.

In April, Ford Motor Co. engineers took their show on the road, when they appeared in Washington D.C. to show off their alternative fuel vehicles.

"It's going to take more than mere wanting to put on the road, in significant numbers, either of the two vehicles we're displaying," said John P.

McTague, vice president at Ford.

He told officials in the capitol that both industry and government will have to work together to perfect a vehicle that can be run on an alternative fuel source.

"We'd like to see a cooperative industry and government evaluation program for alternative fuel vehicles, along with actions to encourage alternative fuel production and supply," he told government officials.

One of the downfalls according to McTague is that developing a vehicle that will run on another source of fuel may be more expensive to the consumer. And more expensive cars would be harder to sell. Not many customers will buy a car for environmental reasons.
